Unlock the Secrets of Starved Rock

In the midst of vast Illinois farmland, weekend travelers discover a topographical surprise along the Illinois River.

Less than 100 miles southwest of Chicago, melting glaciers left their mark, carving a maze of canyons into the St. Peter sandstone. Visitors to Starved Rock State Park in Oglesby see 18 sandstone canyons, seasonal waterfalls and tree-covered bluffs along its 15 miles of hiking trails. Start at the visitors center for snacks, interactive displays and a map of trails that include the .3-mile walk to Starved Rock, the .8-mile trail to Eagle Cliff, and the 4-mile trek to views of Council Overhang, Ottawa and Kaskaskia canyons. The park also offers seasonal free, guided hikes. For less strenuous trips to see Lover’s Leap and the Starved Rock Lock and Dam, take a narrated tour aboard the Belle of the Rock paddle wheel boat. Nearby Matthiessen State Park has 5 miles of hiking trails that lead to a picturesque canyon and interesting rock formations.

—Megy Karydes
AFTER HOURS
Guests at Starved Rock Lodge and Conference Center choose between rustic hotel rooms or log cabins in the woods. Finish the day with a burger and a Starved Rock Signature Ale while listening to live music at the Veranda on Fridays and Saturdays. In nearby Ottawa, Heritage Harbor offers vacation cottages for rent.

OFF-SITE ADVENTURES
The Illinois and Michigan Canal was built in the mid-1800s to connect the Great Lakes to the Mississippi River by way of the Illinois River. Today, more than 60 miles of preserved towpath from Rockdale to LaSalle form the multiuse Illinois and Michigan Canal State Trail. Hikers and bikers see historic sites, numerous state parks and river views with wildlife.

For a different vantage point of the river, try the 90-minute I & M Canal Mule-Pulled Boat Ride in LaSalle. Mules Joe and Moe pull the replica canal boat, while guides dressed in period attire take you on the same journey as 19th-century pioneers.

MUST-TRY
BURGERS AND BUBBLES
Fuel up in Ottawa’s Burger and Sushi House (B.A.S.H.), with specialties such as the Crabby Patty burger (with crab rangoon mix, sweet-n-sour and fried wontons) or a Shrimp Tempura roll. Across the river, Illinois Sparkling Company uses locally grown grapes to create bubbly wines in the town of Peru. To sample their five wines, head 12 miles east to their tasting room in North Utica.

Q: When you think about home, what are you envisioning?
A: The house on Briarwood Lane in Roscoe (12 miles north of Rockford), where I grew up. I think about being in a neighborhood with kids. Back then, you got to ride your bicycle around the neighborhood by yourself. You knew the other kids and hung out with them.

Q: Away from the racetrack, who drives?
A: I let (fellow NASCAR driver Ricky Stenhouse Jr.) drive most of the time because I don’t like speeding tickets and I can’t stop myself from speeding.

Q: And he can?
A: Yeah, he drives very slow. I was just making fun of him this morning on the way to the track. He was in the slow lane and behind a bus. He never got over.

Q: What’s your favorite song to sing when nobody’s listening?
A: I sing anything with anyone in the car. If I know it, I sing it.

Q: When you’re singing in the car, where do you like to drive in Illinois?
A: Lake Shore Drive in Chicago is really, really beautiful with the parks and water and buildings.

Q: You post lots of great food photos on Instagram. What Illinois restaurants do you crave?
A: The food in Chicago is amazing. One of my all-time favorites is Tru. Schwa is another one. It’s super tiny, BYOB and they’re known for not being able to get in. I got lucky, and they answered the phone.

Q: What do you do during your time off?
A: I like to travel, cook, visit family and work out. I’m kind of arts-and-crafty. If I have time, I like to make something or draw or paint or cut wood. Recently, I made a bunch of dream catchers.

Q: What’s your best tip for packing?
A: I leave my toiletry bag intact because it’s hard to remember every last thing.

Q: How did growing up in Illinois influence your perspective on life?
A: Midwesterners are friendly people. Any time I meet someone and feel like this person is super nice and easy to talk to, I ask where he or she is from, and it’s somewhere in the Midwest. And you learn to embrace the seasons. In the summer, you’re outside grilling. When Halloween comes around, you go to the pumpkin patch. Christmas really feels like Christmas.

Fleeing persecution in Missouri, Joseph Smith and his followers, known as Latter-day Saints, arrived in southwest Illinois in 1839. Smith named the town Nauvoo, hoping it would live up to its Hebrew meaning of a “beautiful place” to rest. More than 10,000 Mormons called Nauvoo home until 1844, when persecution arose again, spurring their migration to Utah. Today’s living-history sites bring the Mormon era to vivid life. — Megy Karydes
NAUVOO TODAY
A day in this town of 1,200 people along the Mississippi River provides a glimpse into the roots of a homegrown American belief system. Key events in the early days of Mormonism, a religion now counting about 15 million followers worldwide, played out in this frontier village. At the visitors center, travelers browse through historic artifacts and displays, including a relief map of Nauvoo in 1846. Guides driving horse-drawn wagons take visitors on free 30-minute tours past more than 30 historic sites downtown.

At the Joseph Smith Historic Site, a guided walking tour begins with a short film and continues through the Joseph Smith Homestead and Mansion house. The Red Brick Store, once the epicenter of community life, still operates as a general store selling old-fashioned games and other goods representative of items found on the same shelves in 1842–44. The tour passes the Smith Family Cemetery and Nauvoo House, a boarding house now available as a rental.

Amid downtown’s restored shops, homes and public buildings from the 1840s, look for monuments honoring Smith and other figures. At the Webb Brothers’ Blacksmith Shop, watch demos and leave with a hand-forged iron ring hammered from a horseshoe nail.

The Nauvoo Family Living Center offers kids hands-on experiences from the 19th century as they make rope and candles, watch tour guides weave rugs from rags, and taste bread from a brick oven.

The luminous Mormon Nauvoo Temple towers on a bluff overlooking a bend in the Mississippi River. Built in 2002 as a replica of the 1840s original destroyed by arson, the temple is open only to Latter-day Saints, but the public can tour the grounds.

LODGINGS AND RESTAURANTS
Aromas from decadent cinnamon rolls waft though the eight upstairs rooms at Hotel Nauvoo, tempting guests from their four-poster beds to join the breakfast buffet.

Across the street, Grandpa John’s Nauvoo Cafe and Soda Fountain serves home-style breakfast and lunch.

Dishing on Chicago-Style Pizza

No matter how many regional takes on pizza you’ve tried, there’s no more epic pie experience than the two-handed meal that is Chicago deep dish.

DID YOU KNOW?
Soldiers returning from Italy in WWII made pizza popular in America.

BY KATE SILVER
PHOTOS BY KEVIN J. MIYAZAKI/REDUX
If you ask Chicagoans about the best deep-dish pizza in town, you can probably count on an argument. Here’s what’s generally agreed upon: Chicago-style pie was born in 1943, when The Pizzeria downtown placed a thick crust in a pie-like pan with sides and “inverted” the toppings. Cheese, vegetables and meat come first, followed by sauce on top. There’s a practical reason behind the structure: The pie’s thickness requires nearly an hour of baking, so saucing the top keeps the cheese from burning. As for who makes the best version of this classic, we’ll leave it to you to try some favorites and make the decision.

Clockwise from top left: Lou Malnati’s Pizzeria. Customers are encouraged to leave graffiti on the walls of Gino’s East. The original Pizzeria Uno in the Near North Side neighborhood (2). Gino’s East (2). The Gold Coast iteration of Lou Malnati’s features an industrial-chic vibe (2).
UPPER CRUST At Lou Malnati’s, try the signature, flaky Buttercrust for added richness and texture.

PIZZERIA UNO
When Ike Sewell first served his deep dish on the corner of Ohio and Wabash, lines stretched out the door. After merging with nearby Pizzeria Riccardo in 1955, Sewell changed his restaurant name to Pizzeria Uno, and Ric Riccardo’s place became Pizzeria Due. Their pies have an ultra thick, crunchy crust and sauce made from plum tomatoes. Uno Pizzeria and Grill now has locations nationwide, but tourists still flock to the original locale for a taste of pie history.

LOU MALNATI’S PIZZERIA
Lou Malnati and his father, Rudy, got their starts working at Pizzeria Uno. (There is still a debate about whether Rudy had a hand in inventing the deep-dish dough recipe.) Lou took his expertise to the northern suburb of Lincolnwood in 1971. At more than 46 locations throughout the area, Malnati’s serves a flaky, buttery crust covered with toppings, such as its exclusive sausage blend, fresh mozzarella supplied from a small dairy and vine-ripened tomatoes. A gluten-free version uses lean sausage as a crust.

GIORDANO’S
Although brothers Efren and Joseph Boglio opened the first Giordano’s on Chicago’s South Side in 1974, the family recipe dates back some 200 years, when Mama Giordano baked her beloved Italian Easter Pie. At 59 locations in Chicago and beyond, Giordano’s adds an extra layer of goodness by stuffing the toppings and cheese between two layers of crust.

GINO’S EAST
Cab drivers (and entrepreneurs) Sam Levine and Fred Bartoli opened Gino’s East in downtown Chicago near Michigan Avenue in 1966. Their golden-crust pizzas are served piping hot in cast-iron pans in more than 20 locations in Illinois, Wisconsin, Texas and Arizona. For a little heat, try the Chicago Fire with extra-spicy Italian sausage, fire-roasted red peppers, red onions and a jalapeño on top.

PEQUOD’S PIZZA
Founded in 1970 in the northwest Chicago suburb of Morton Grove, Pequod’s deep dish features a caramelized crust. It’s made by spreading a thin layer of cheese along the dough’s edge prior to baking, giving it a chewy texture. Patrons enjoy the difference at the original Morton Grove pizzeria or the outpost in Chicago’s Lincoln Park neighborhood.

Sample slices at four pizzerias with Chicago Pizza Tours. You’ll even score a behind-the-scenes look inside the kitchens to learn a trade secret or two.

Mike Salvatore’s custom bike shop and craft coffeehouse combine for a stop that’s all the buzz in Chicago.
Heritage is the first bicycle manufacturer to set up shop in Chicago since Schwinn shuttered its production plant decades ago. Each of the 500 or so bikes Heritage builds every year takes six weeks to assemble. The line includes five vintage-inspired frames with names such as The Chief, The Jane, The Goblin and Daisy. The bikes are fabricated with American-made steel tubing. Prices start at $799 and go up as buyers customize. Upgrades such as high-performance brake systems and gears, as well as custom paint jobs, saddles and handlebars, personalize the ride. Stylish accessories include fenders, colored tires and cycling bags. Heritage Bikes General Store also sells bicycle gear crafted by European designers.

For Mike, a fifth-generation Chicagoan, owning a neighborhood store is as natural as, well, riding a bike. He’s been peddling goods since he sold balloons tethered to the handlebars of his Knight Rider Big Wheel in his Rogers Park neighborhood (about 6 miles north of Lakeview).
Mike met his photographer wife, Melissa, at the University of Arizona. After graduation, the couple moved to New York, where Mike worked on Wall Street and built bikes at an East Village co-op on weekends. While selling bikes at street markets, Mike noticed vendors luring customers with coffee. That’s when his bicycle-coffee concept began percolating.

In 2011, Mike and Melissa moved back to Chicago and opened Heritage Bikes down the block from Melissa’s family portrait storefront, A Little Photo Studio. Now, customers also find Heritage Outpost coffee hangouts in the Edgewater and Uptown neighborhoods. Chicago’s Intelligentsia roasts the Heritage brand of globally grown coffees for all of the stores decked out with bicycles.

This year, Mike plans to expand the business with more Heritage Outposts in Chicago (some serving craft cocktails) and increase bike production. He’s customizing the Chicago commute, one made-to-order bike and coffee at a time. That’s just how Mike rolls.

Check the Illinois Made section of enjoyillinois.com for tips on where to find handcrafted flavors and wares.

CHICAGO’S LAKEFRONT TRAIL
The 18.5-mile paved route along Lake Michigan’s shoreline connects sandy beaches and waterfront parks, perfect for picnics framed by iconic skyline views. The Hotel Lincoln, SoHo House Chicago and Chicago Athletic Association hotels provide guests with Heritage bikes for exploring the city.

LABAGH WOODS
The Chicago River and undulating gravel bike trails run through this forest preserve on the city’s northwest side. Nearby, throwback Superdawg dishes classic Chicago-style hot dogs.

BARRINGTON
The northern suburb’s country roads offer leisurely road rides past horse farms. Mike kick-starts his daylong pedals at Cook Street Coffee and ends them at Penny Road Pub.

ILLINOIS CYCLOCROSS EVENTS
Attending these high-performance, cross-country races as a spectator is a great way to experience Illinois’ small towns. In his 1968 motor home, Mike transports Chicago teams sponsored by Heritage.
For a crash course in architecture, just gaze upward in Chicago. From Frank Lloyd Wright to mid-century modernism to skyscrapers still under construction, the Windy City keeps turning building into a work of art.

City by D

BY DANNY LEE
On virtually any street corner in Chicago, you’re surrounded by the inspiration of world-renowned architects playing out in brick, cement, glass and steel. The city’s skyline reflects more than a century of architectural exploration sparked—in part—by the Great Fire of 1871, which decimated hundreds of old wood-frame and brick buildings squatting on the lakefront. In their place came a new generation of structures with steel skeletons perfected by the original Chicago School of architects: visionaries such as Louis Sullivan, Daniel Burnham and Dankmar Adler.

After WWII, a second Chicago School pressed even higher. Bruce Graham and Fazlur Rahman Khan’s Sears Tower (now called the Willis Tower) topped the skyline as the world’s tallest building in 1973. Their John Hancock Center, as well as Edward Durell Stone’s Aon Center and Ludwig Mies van der Rohe’s Lake Shore Drive Apartments, added to the portfolio of downtown scene-stealers.

Today, the Windy City is known worldwide for its collection of towering skyscrapers. Visitors explore the city’s built environment with tours by foot, water, bike, bus, trolley or train. Stops include imposing, spare modernist towers reflected in the flat expanse of Lake Michigan and older, smaller buildings packed with history. New buildings on the drawing board or in construction promise exciting new explorations.
THE LOOP
In downtown Chicago, some buildings let you see for miles in every direction, while others let you peer directly into the past. The CHICAGO CULTURAL CENTER, for instance, looks all the way back to its 1897 opening as the Chicago Public Library, wowing visitors with a columned classical design of arched portals, multicolored marble and stained-glass domes topping symmetrical wings. Vaulting skyward, in contrast, is the 110-story WILLIS TOWER, where visitors thrill to the views from The Ledge at Skydeck Chicago, where clear-glass cases jut out from the building’s 103rd floor.

The 1930 MERCHANDISE MART building is vast enough that it once earned its own ZIP code. Originally comprised of warehouses and showrooms for Marshall Field and Company, the building (now home to retailers and offices) shows off its Art Deco aesthetics with chamfer angles and a terrazzo-floor lobby with a 17-mural frieze.

With more than 70 buildings that top 500 feet, Chicago boasts one of the most impressive skylines on the planet. (Inset) The gleaming facade of the 1924 Wrigley Building comes from six shades of white terra-cotta.
UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO CAMPUS

Gothic architecture finds new and old forms on this wooded south-side Chicago school, with the ivy-covered HULL GATE and JOSEPH BOND CHAPEL well-suited for the grounds of European cathedrals. You’ll feel as if you’ve entered the Great Hall of Hogwarts while strolling through the WILLIAM RAINEY HARPER MEMORIAL LIBRARY, with its soaring arched ceiling and hulking chandelier. The more intimate IDA NOYES HALL charms visitors with intricately carved oak wainscoting and wrought-iron railings. Meanwhile, the blocky HENRY HINDS LABORATORY FOR GEOPHYSICAL SCIENCES takes a modern twist on Gothic with an abundance of right angles.

OAK PARK

As downtown boomed, architect Frank Lloyd Wright found a way to make the horizontal take wing in his PRAIRIE SCHOOL HOMES, all accented by geometric details and custom furniture. Oak Park showcases some of the best examples of this style, including the master’s own OAK PARK HOME AND STUDIO starring a two-story children’s playroom with vaulted ceilings and a skylight. Take a one-hour guided tour, or if you have a few hours, combine it with a self-guided audio tour of the exteriors of seven Wright-designed homes in town. The annual WRIGHT PLUS HOUSEWALK (May 20 this year) includes rarely offered interior tours of homes and buildings designed by Wright and his contemporaries.

PILSEN

Aside from the downtown area gutted by fire in 1871, perhaps no Chicago neighborhood has changed more than Pilsen on the southwest side. Once the home of Bohemian, Czech and German immigrants, the neighborhood has become a close-knit Mexican-American community. Many Old Europe-style buildings are adorned with modern murals. The 1892 Romanesque Revival THALIA HALL demands a visit, restored to imposing glory with its entryway of carved Bedford limestone beneath a vivid stained-glass window. The NATIONAL MUSEUM OF MEXICAN ART offers a look at boldly colored pieces mirroring the neighborhood’s lively character.

WICKER PARK

Just northwest of the Loop, BEER BARON ROW features lavish mansions built by wealthy businessmen around the turn of the 20th century. Those men likely gathered at the terra-cotta-fish-decorated NORTH AVENUE BATHS, now occupied by Trenchermen, a trendy gastropub. Still following its original role is ST. STANISLAUS KOSTKA CHURCH in an elaborate Renaissance Revival-style building. Frescoes by Thaddeus Zukotynski cover the dome above the altar. On a lighter note, the HERMANN WEINHARDT HOUSE captures passersby with its gingerbread ornamentation and Christmasy color palette of green limestone and red brick.

Dozens of walking tours are themed around niche interests such as Tiffany Treasures and Evolution of the Skyscraper. For an all-encompassing view of the city on a tight timeline, opt for the Must-See Chicago tour, which involves hopping on and off the famous L train to see landmarks, such as the WRIGLEY BUILDING, the ART INSTITUTE OF CHICAGO and the CHICAGO THEATRE, all within a 90-minute time frame.

Come back in the autumn to experience the Chicago Architecture Foundation’s popular OPEN HOUSE CHICAGO event (October 14–15 this year), which allows free access to a changing menu of more than 200 architectural gems. Visitors will have exclusive access to skyscrapers offices, private clubs, historic landmarks and some of Chicago’s most fascinating locales.
Historical Gems
AROUND THE STATE
Intriguing architecture fills Illinois, especially in several little towns with big histories.

WOODSTOCK
An hour’s drive northwest of Chicago, Woodstock’s town square is anchored by the ornate Woodstock Opera House, built in 1889 of local materials, including brick, fieldstone, terra-cotta and limestone, artfully combined in a structure showing various styles: Gothic, Victorian and Midwestern. Nineteenth-century storefronts (including the 1857 courthouse and sheriff’s residence) surround a downtown park with a gazebo replicating one that originally sheltered a spring thought to have medicinal properties.

QUINCY
With a whopping 3,600 buildings on the National Register of Historic Places, this mid-state Mississippi River town stars endless examples of Federal Style and Greek Revival structures dating to the 1800s. Check out the Gothic Revival St. Francis Catholic Church, the Newcomb-Stillwell Mansion (doing duty as the Quincy Museum), Dick Brothers Brewery (now a fine arts gallery) and Villa Kathrine Castle, serving as the Quincy Visitors Center on a bluff above the Mississippi River.

GALENA
Antique homes headline the sights in Galena, tucked into the state’s northwest corner. An impressive 85 percent of the town’s buildings are listed on the National Register of Historic Places, which includes such highlights as the Ulysses S. Grant and Elihu B. Washburne homes. Roughly following the Galena River, Main Street contains elaborate Victorian structures housing coffee shops, tearooms, boutiques, galleries, bed-and-breakfasts (there are 31 in town) and restaurants. On surrounding river bluffs, broad, shaded lawns surround the mansions built by steamship captains and owners of nearby lead mines, many ornamented with turrets, columns, ornate bay windows and all the other frills and flounces beloved by 19th-century homeowners.

New Stars OF THE SKYLINE
Chicago is far from done with architectural trendsetting. One example: the sleek, ribbon-like 93-story VISTA TOWER, slated to be finished by 2020. Several other new structures have commanded attention over the past few years:
• A mixed-use tower called AQUA has drawn stares and selfies since 2009 for its wavy 82-story configuration.
• The 60-story WALDORF ASTORIA CHICAGO—with a Parisian-style exterior complete with spires and colonnades—opened in 2010.
• ONEELEVEN, a geometrically segmented glass tower housing luxury apartments, opened in 2014.
• The lakefront’s Navy Pier got a brand-new CENTENNIAL WHEEL in 2016. Around 400 people can ride the 200-foot-tall wheel at a time. Gondolas feature interactive video screens loaded with Navy Pier information.

UNLEASH YOUR WILD SIDE LEARNING ABOUT LAND AND SEA CREATURES (AND EFFORTS TO ENSURE THEIR SURVIVAL) WITH A VISIT TO ILLINOIS ZOOS AND AQUARIUMS.
SPOTLIGHT ON...

LINCOLN PARK ZOO

Opened in 1868, Chicago’s free neighborhood zoo is one of the nation’s oldest, but it’s always evolving.

Endangered African penguins are among the newest residents, thanks to the addition of the Robert and Mayari Pritzker Penguin Cove. The exhibit, which can house a colony of up to 30 penguins, simulates their natural habitat on South Africa’s Cape. Visitors love watching the creatures waddle on the beach and play underwater tag, torpedoing around crustacean-covered rocks.

The new 11,000-square-foot Walter Family Arctic Tundra exhibit is home to a polar bear. The outdoor playground reflects the bear’s natural environment with a waterfall, dig pits and pools with underwater viewing areas. Guests get a feel for the bear’s frigid homeland by touching an ice wall and entering a chilly cave.

The recently renovated Kovler Seal Pool—home to a blended family of gray and harbor seals—marks an additional expansion as part of the zoo’s $125 million improvement plan. Future plans include renovating the Kovler Lion House and building a new visitors center.

7 MORE SPOTS TO GET WILD

PEORIA ZOO
Peoria
The new Africa! exhibit nearly doubled the size of this classic zoo. Visitors can stand inches from a lion playfully pawing the glass, and look for rhinos and zebras wandering across the area.

MILLER PARK ZOO
Bloomington
Trot around the world with themed exhibits, such as Animals of Asia, Tropical America Rainforest and the new flamingo habitat. Kids love the hands-on ZooLab, carousel and the daily seal, leopard, bear and tiger feedings.

HENSON ROBINSON ZOO
Springfield
More than 90 species native to the Americas, Asia, Africa and Australia live here, next to Lake Springfield. Docent-led animal encounters teach guests about creatures’ behaviors and the zoo’s conservation efforts.

COSLEY ZOO
Wheaton
This compact zoo houses Illinois wildlife and Midwest farm animals. Red foxes, turkey vultures, raccoons and owls are among those living in 20 natural habitat areas.
SCOVILL ZOO Decatur
More than 400 animals, including big cats, camels, alligators, scorpions and tarantulas, reside at this lakeside zoo, which is especially committed to cheetah conservation. Visitors take tours aboard a replica 1863 steam train and ride a hand-carved wooden carousel.

PHILLIPS PARK ZOO Aurora
North American birds of prey, reptiles, a cougar and farmyard animals live in this free zoo in a lakeside park. At the Stover Visitors Center, view mastodon bones found on the park’s grounds.

WILDLIFE PRAIRIE PARK Hanna City/Peoria
An easy 1.5-mile hiking trail through woodlands passes enclosures housing rescued wildlife native to the Midwest. Cougars, black bears and bison live in this recreation park, which also offers fishing, wildlife talks, and 20 miles of hiking, mountain biking and running trails.
Who’s ready to party? Every summer, lively festivals celebrate Shakespeare, Superman and the spirit of community across the state.

The granddaddy of America’s music festivals, Chicago’s Lollapalooza (August 3–6 this year) packs 100,000 fans a day into skyscraper-surrounded Grant Park, where crowds rock out to more than 140 bands over four days, including headliners like Radiohead and Paul McCartney. The festival attracts music fans of all ages, especially younger crowds. If you love music, it’s a party you don’t want to miss.

The Grant Park crowds are mellower at the Chicago Blues Festival, better known as Blues Fest (June 9–11). As you’d expect in a city famous for its blues, the lineup features some of the genre’s best acts. Admission is free, and the pavilion fills with fans who nod their heads to the slow tunes and dance to high-energy blues funk. Don’t be surprised if legends such as Buddy Guy (who has a blues bar down the street) make a guest appearance.

Get more thrills dancing in Grant Park during Chicago SummerDance, a free outdoor summer dance party on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays (June 23–September 10). Each weekend night features a different dance style, like swing, salsa, waltz or Bollywood. After a group dance lesson, a live band plays as you try out your moves on the basketball-court-sized dance floor.

For live music in a low-key setting, pack your finest picnic gear and head to tree-covered Ravinia Festival on the North Shore in Highland Park. Set up lawn chairs and uncork wine while listening to classical music or popular acts like James Taylor. Fireworks cap off musical performances during the free Rockin’ in the Park concert series in Rosemont (Thursdays between Memorial Day and Labor Day). Local food tents dot the open green in MB Financial Park, so be sure to come hungry (and don’t forget lawn chairs).
LOLLAPALOOZA
• Tickets sell out quickly, so be ready to make your purchase the exact minute they go on sale in the spring, or you’ll have to pay more through a ticket broker.
• Don’t miss Chow Town, a food festival within the festival, where some of the city’s best restaurants serve fest-friendly food like gourmet lobster corn dogs.

CHICAGO BLUES FESTIVAL
• During the day, tour Blues Heaven Foundation, a small blues museum on Michigan Avenue at the site of the old Chess Studios, where legends such as Muddy Waters and Bo Diddley recorded songs.
• Getting in and out of Grant Park can take forever on crowded nights. Book a downtown hotel room in advance so that you’re close to the action.

CHICAGO SUMMERDANCE
• Check the schedule in advance to see what type of dance is being taught on which night. That way you don’t show up to learn Bollywood dancing on a night they’re featuring salsa.
• Bring the kids! SummerDance is a family-friendly event.

RAVINIA FESTIVAL
• Don’t want to drag lawn chairs and coolers? Preorder a picnic box dinner and rent chairs there. Or, park in the Highland Park Metra lot, eat dinner in downtown Highland Park, and take a free shuttle bus to Ravinia.
• It’s hard see the stage from the lawn seats, so get there early to grab a spot with a clear view of the video screens showing the stage. It’s the next best thing.

“Whoa, cool!” is a phrase you’ll hear often while watching military jets whiz past, spin and perform other incredible tricks at the Chicago Air and Water Show (August 19–20). Nearly 2 million spectators line the downtown lakefront for the two-day show. Celebrate a different type of soaring star at the annual Superman Celebration in Metropolis (June 8–11). The Man of Steel’s “hometown” honors its native son with panel discussions, celebrity guests and other Superman-themed activities, including costume contests and carnival rides and games.

Dozens of hot-air balloons fill the skies during the Great Galena Balloon Race (June 16–18) before they land at Eagle Ridge Resort and Spa. You won’t reach the sky, but you’ll get up to 100 feet in the air during a tethered balloon ride at Eves to the Skies in the western suburb of Lisle (June 30–July 2). This fund-raiser for local charities also features nightly balloon glows and fireworks, carnival rides and live music.

CHICAGO AIR AND WATER SHOW
• Go to the lakefront (ideally, Oak Street Beach) on Friday afternoon when pilots practice. The show is just as impressive, and the crowds are a fraction of the size.
• For a really closeup view, buy a ticket to 360 Chicago on the 94th floor of the John Hancock Center. The planes will whiz by at eye level.

SUPERMAN CELEBRATION
• Take a selfie with Superman! Check the festival website (supermancelebration.net) for meet times.
• There are more than 30 activities per day during this festival, so look at the schedule and do a little pre-fest planning.
Chicago's Printers Row Lit Fest (June 10–11) stacks five city blocks with book-filled booths from publishers big and small. Peruse their displays for new, used, antique and kids’ books. Discover a breakout writer, or check out a celebrity author. Honor the world’s most famous playwright during Bloomington’s Illinois Shakespeare Festival (June 30–August 12). Picnic on the grounds of the Ewing Cultural Center before watching traditional and creative stage versions of the Bard’s works, such as Cymbeline or A Midsummer Night’s Dream. Tickets to these high-quality shows start at just $12.

A more tangible art form makes the Geneva Arts Fair (July 22–23) a nationally renowned festival (40 miles west of Chicago). More than 150 juried artists exhibit and sell their work in this town along the Fox River. You’ll be tempted to take home your own painting, sculpture or piece of handmade jewelry from the lineup of high-quality, can’t-find-it-in-a-store work. That’s also the case at the Midsummer Arts Faire in Quincy (June 3–4), the Springfield Old Capitol Art Fair (May 19–21) and the Art on the Square in Belleville (May 19–21).

INSIDER TIPS

PRINTERS ROW LIT FEST
- Buy a weekend-long Fest Pass for access to express book-signing lines and freebies like an e-book, poster and tote bag.
- Download the Lit Fest app, which allows you to build your schedule, get discounted e-books, see up-to-date schedules and more.

ILLINOIS SHAKESPEARE FESTIVAL
- Going with kids? Check out their 45-minute family shows.
- For $10 per person, one of the actors will take you on a preshow backstage tour.

GENEVA ARTS FAIR
- Although Geneva is famous for this arts fair, it’s also known for its chocolate. Grab a few pieces at any of the dozen specialty chocolate shops in town.

MIDSUMMER ARTS FAIRE
- If the kids are bored, get a day pass to The Salvation Army Ray and Joan Kroc facility, an impressive community center, one block north of the festival site.
- The nearby Park Bench restaurant is a comfy place to go for coffee, a light breakfast, or soup, salad and a sandwich for lunch.
INSIDER TIPS

RIBFEST
• From noon to 3 p.m., you can score a $10 wristband to enjoy unlimited carnival rides.
• Let the kids vote for their favorite ribs and help decide who wins the Kids’ Choice Award.
• During the fireworks show, tune in to 104.3 FM, which simulcasts music to accompany the spectacle.

TASTE OF CHICAGO
• Order the smaller and less expensive “taste” menu items, so that you’ll have room in your stomach and budget to sample more foods.
• The best time to visit is during the weekday lunch hour, when the crowds are significantly smaller.

INTERNATIONAL HORSE RADISH FESTIVAL
• Take home a jar of freshly grated Illinois-grown horseradish, said to be tastier than anything you can buy in a grocery store.
• See if you can win Root Toss, Root Golf or any of the other quirky games featuring horseradish roots.

TASTE OF CHAMPAIGN-URBANA
• Burn off some calories with the Pie Run, a 3.14-mile dinnertime run with homemade pie samples (and water) along the route. If you choose, you can have a “flying pie” thrown at your face for a photo op when you cross the finish line!
• Park for free in the area on Saturdays—the parking meters will not be enforced.

COBDEN PEACH FESTIVAL
• Watch to see which lucky winner will take home the Peach Queen crown.
• For a taste of small-town Americana, go to the Saturday night Peach Festival parade—the highlight of the weekend.

Grab some extra napkins, because you’ll have sauce-covered fingers from eating the meaty-covered ribs at Ribfest in Naperville. Away from the grills, well-known music acts perform and families line up for carnival rides and games, with fireworks capping off the night. More tasty ‘cue—plus a smorgasbord of live entertainment—awaits in Chicago at the Windy City Smokeout (July 14–16). Menus get more diverse at Taste of Chicago (July 5–9), with more than 60 restaurants and food trucks along downtown’s lakefront. While you can try Chicago’s famous deep-dish pizza, save room for unique ethnic dishes, like African sautéed goat, a Puerto Rican jibarito sandwich or Polish pierogies. Taste buds get a kick at the International Horseradish Festival in Collinsville (June 3–4). Try horseradish pot roast, spiral potatoes with horseradish seasoning and a horseradish-infused bloody mary before shopping for homemade crafts and then watching—or competing in—the annual Root Games.

Taste of Champaign-Urbana (August 18–19) doubles as a fundraiser for local youth programs in Champaign’s park district. During the day, it’s a family-friendly fest with inflatables, artist demonstrations and games. After the sun goes down, it transforms into more of an adult party, with a hopping beer tent and headlining music acts.

Follow the scent of homemade peach cobbler to southern Illinois’ Cobden Peach Festival, which has lured visitors to this town of 1,100 since 1938. Besides the out-of-this-world cobbler, fest-goers snack on freshly sliced peaches from local farmers while taking in the family-friendly parade, carnival rides and games.

You’ll find plenty of good local eats along a 90-mile stretch of the former Mother Road during the Illinois Route 66 Red Carpet Corridor Festival (May 6–7), when twelve communities celebrate the community spirit of the road with special events. Get your comfort-food fix at stops such as the Old Log Cabin, serving hearty breakfasts and meaty burgers and melts in Pontiac.

Thanks to 450-plus public golf courses capitalizing on unique local features across the state, a tour of Illinois golf tests your game in dozens of fresh ways.

BY LEN ZIEHM AND STEVE DOLBINSKI
EAGLE RIDGE RESORT AND SPA

The gentle hills and thick woodlands along Lake Galena cradle one of Illinois’ best concentrations of high-end golf. Eagle Ridge Resort and Spa, outside Galena in northwest Illinois, spreads 63 holes over its four courses. The resort’s signature course—The General—features spectacular elevation changes, often coming into play with tee boxes elevated far above fairways. (Hole 14 has a 180-foot-drop from tee to green.) Streams, ponds, generous bunkers and shot-bending doglegs make for unforgettable rounds.

Off the course, the resort fills a day with an indoor pool, tennis courts, 20 miles of cycling and hiking trails, a fitness center, and six restaurants. And the historical town of Galena is a short drive away with its boutique shops, galleries and restaurants.

For more weekend getaways built around a great day on the links, turn the page for a guide to each region’s courses.
HARBORSIDE INTERNATIONAL GOLF CENTER, CHICAGO
Two courses feature links-style golf with the Chicago skyline as a close backdrop. In 2014, Golfweek awarded the Starboard Course the 13th spot in its Best Municipal Courses in the nation. Port’s signature 15th hole features an anchor-shaped sand trap.

ALDEEN GOLF CLUB, ROCKFORD
Golf magazine named Aldeen one of its Thrifty Fifty courses to play (top 50 courses for under $50). Golfers navigate Dick Nugent-designed beach bunkers and an island green with a replica of the Swilcan Bridge at St. Andrews.

CANTIGNY GOLF, WHEATON
Three courses add up to a day of golf. Golfers who play all 27 holes take shots through dense woods and greens surrounded by water. The two-tiered seventh green on the Hillside course demands a sharp shot and a smart club choice.

COG HILL GOLF AND COUNTRY CLUB, LEMONT
Duffers beware: Accuracy is key at Course No. 4 (Dubshead), the most challenging of Cog Hill’s four courses. Rees Jones recently renovated the Dubhead, rebuilding its greens with tight landings and repositioned hazards and bunkers.

MISTWOOD GOLF CLUB, ROMEOVILLE
Find a bit of Scotland in Chicagoland, with 20 St. Andrews-style sod-wall bunkers at Mistwood. A two-year renovation earned the course a spot on Golf Digest’s Best New Courses of 2013. The new Performance Center offers custom club fitting, equipment repairs and lessons.

THE DEN AT FOX CREEK, BLOOMINGTON
This Arnold Palmer-designed 18-hole course offers wide, bent grass fairways with wild prairie grasses that flourish in the rough. A ball-gobbling 131 bunkers flank this postcard-perfect Scottish links-style course, with water hazards in play on half the holes.

THE RAIL GOLF COURSE, SPRINGFIELD
Eighty-two sand bunkers plus five lakes at this dairy farm-turned-golf course make The Rail a challenging and beautiful play. Golf Digest gives the course designed by Robert Trent Jones Sr. a 4-star rating.

LAND OF LINCOLN

FLY IN LAND ON THE GREEN

It costs some green ($1,200–$3,000), but it’s worth it to arrive in style. Chicago Helicopter Experience delivers golfers to more than 50 Midwest courses, including Cog Hill.
PGA Hall of Famer Raymond Floyd made his mark on the PGA tour and this signature 18-hole course. The generous fairways gently undulate throughout the course among native prairie grasses. Plenty of tee options mean golfers of all skill levels can have an enjoyable round.

Tim and Dick Nugent designed Stone Creek with pampered bent grass fairways molded into subtle, smooth hills that frame the true-rolling greens. This 18-hole course has hosted the Big 10 Golf Championships for both men and women, and is home to the Fighting Illini golf teams.

PGA Champions Tour player and Illinois State alum D.A. Weibring supervised extensive improvements to fairways, greens and hazards at this course, which opened in 1962. Home to the Illinois State Redbirds, this par-71 course hosts numerous high school and college competitions.

Located near Lake Carlyle, the course’s front nine holes have an open style of play, with prairie textures and lakes. The back nine holes take golfers through woodlands and over creeks, and require shot-making accuracy. Golfers enjoy postgame food and bragging rights at Governors Run Bar and Grill.

The Links set the standard in Southern Illinois for a great golf experience with family-friendly green fees. Kokopelli is the perfect walking course—just make sure you don’t have to stroll through too many of the bunkers that guard the fairways and greens.

Overlooking 18,000-acre Rend Lake, this 27-hole course is part of a recreation complex that includes dining and lodging options. Five sets of tees make this course extremely playable for all levels.
GREAT RIVERS COUNTRY

ANNBRIAR GOLF COURSE, WATERLOO
This family-friendly, farm-turned-golf course welcomes players of every handicap. The 18 scenic holes were carved through mature forests. Guests top off their experience by relaxing at Annbriar’s Smokehouse Restaurant.

HARRY MUSSATTO GOLF COURSE, MACOMB
The Lamoine River Valley near the Western Illinois University campus provides elevation changes and scenery for two nine-hole courses. Water hazards and bunkers mix with tree-lined fairways at this course named after a beloved WIU alum and coach.

SPENCER T. OLIN GOLF COURSE, ALTON
Its wide fairways tempt, and the many doglegs taunt. Play safe or cut a corner to the green? These decisions make for an entertaining day of golf. Four sets of tees on each hole make a fair contest for every member of the foursome.

ARGOSY CASINO, ALTON
The state’s first riverboat casino features more than 1,000 slots. Dine at Journey restaurant while savoring views of the Clark Bridge.

CASINO QUEEN, EAST ST. LOUIS
Claiming to have the loosest slots around, this casino also features the Market Street Buffet with international cuisine.

GRAND VICTORIA CASINO, ELGIN
Play baccarat or craps before rocking to live music at the GVC Show Bar aboard this riverboat.

HARRAH’S, JOLIET AND METROPOLIS
Take advantage of discounted digs with stay-and-play packages. Joliet’s premium double-queen rooms contain chocolates and bathrobes, while Metropolis offers pet-friendly amenities.

HOLLYWOOD CASINO, AURORA AND JOLIET
Multicolor marquees greet visitors, who try their luck at slots, poker, roulette and more.

JUMER’S CASINO AND HOTEL, ROCK ISLAND
Don’t be fooled by the retro Art Deco decor. Jumer’s features the latest slot innovations and a hotel with a luxurious day spa.

PAR-A-DICE HOTEL AND CASINO, EAST PEORIA
Unwind in suites with whirlpool tubs after hitting the 1,000-plus slots and two dozen table games.

RIVERS CASINO, DES PLAINES
Beyond the vast gaming floor, choose from seven bars and restaurants, including upscale Hugo’s Frog Bar and Chop House.

BEYOND THE COURSE
SEEING GREEN
Even if you don’t feel all that lucky on the golf course, you still might cash in at these eight casinos.

TPC DEERE RUN, SILVIS
The Rock River anchors this course, which meanders past oak trees, deep ravines and ponds. Part of the TPC network and licensed by the PGA Tour, Deere Run is a risk-reward layout that includes five sets of tees that cater to all skill levels.

Home to the first officially recognized gay village in the United States and one of the world’s most celebrated pride festivals, the Windy City embraces its LGBT community.
HOT HANGOUTS

BOYSTOWN

A Legacy Walk of rainbow-color totems with plaques honoring LGBT rights advocates lines the main thoroughfare of this anchor to Chicago's gay scene. It's also known for drawing foodies with unique establishments, such as the Chicago Diner, which has been serving vegetarian comfort food since 1983 (the Cajun black bean burger is a perennial favorite). Indulge in a raspberry truffle shake from Bobtail Ice Cream before exploring funky shops, such as Hollywood Mirror, selling off-the-wall gifts like cupcake pillows. Belt out show tunes on Mondays, Fridays and Sundays at Sidetrack bar or dance to pop music and catch a drag show at Roscoe's.

ANDERSONVILLE

In 1900, one in every 10 Swedish-Americans lived in Andersonville. The community (three miles north of Boystown) retains Swedish character while being the second-largest LGBT-populated neighborhood in the city. The Swedish American Museum tells the story of the community's move to the city's north side after the Great Chicago Fire of 1871. Svea Restaurant dishes up saucy Swedish meatballs and crepelike Swedish pancakes. Whether you're staying for one night or a week, the 25-suite Guesthouse Hotel feels like home with full kitchens and a grocery, but it also includes vacation-worthy amenities such as a spa and locally made meals delivered to your suite.

AROUND TOWN

LGBT-friendly establishments abound throughout the city. For cheese-and wine-lovers, Pastoral carefully curates its artisan cheese plates, wine lists and gift sets at six Chicagoland locations, including in the Loop near the shops at Block 37. At P.O.S.H., discover rare flea market finds from France and England—plus trendy dinnerware sets and vintage jewelry—in a beautifully preserved Queen Anne-style building in River North. While hidden to passersby, downtown's Second Story Bar (above Sayat Nova restaurant off North Michigan Avenue) is worth seeking out for its delightfully divey feel (complete with a worn red carpet) and diverse clientele.

NORTHALSTED MARKET DAYS

Unique arts and crafts, along with State Fair-esque foods such as deep-fried Twinkies and Champagne-lemonade slushes, fill Boystown during the largest outdoor street festival in the Midwest (August 12-13 this year). More than 180,000 visitors come to check out music on five stages (past headliners included Salt-N-Pepa and Olivia Newton-John) and more than 400 vendors that line North Halsted Street.

ONE COLORFUL PARTY

Honoring freedom of expression since the aftermath of the police raid on New York City’s Stonewall Inn gay club in 1969, Chicago Pride draws nearly a million revelers over its two-weekend span. The first weekend (June 17-18 in 2017) features pulsing music on outdoor stages and inside hopping bars along the North Halsted strip in Boystown (part of the East Lakeview neighborhood).

The following weekend, crowds pack the same area, waving rainbow flags as creatively costumed revelers and more than 250 floats take part in the Pride Parade.
To qualify, you must enjoy captivating and picturesque views through historical towns, beautiful forest preserves and prairielands.

Lake County bridges the gap between Chicago’s Cook County and the Wisconsin border with family attractions and nature trails. Daredevil roller coasters, such as the new 12-story Joker and superfast Goliath, draw families to SIX FLAGS GREAT AMERICA in Gurnee. Besides the world’s fastest and steepest wooden coaster (Goliath), the park maintains 13 additional coasters and more than 30 milder rides. Next door, families share a raft as they whoosh down water slides or float Castaway Creek at HURRICANE HARBOR, Six Flags’ 20-acre water park. Nearby KEYLIME COVE, an indoor tropical-themed water resort, houses a wave pool, multiple twisty tube slides and a lazy river that winds through the park. For an outdoor adventure, the nature trails at Glencoe’s CHICAGO BOTANIC GARDEN lead to more than 25 blooming gardens, including the Children’s Growing Garden. Eleven miles west of Gurnee, gearheads appreciate the VOLO AUTO MUSEUM, a sprawling complex housing one-of-a-kind autos, such as the Batmobile and tricked-out muscle cars, plus vintage arcade games, coin-operated kiddie rides, antique malls and a pizza parlor. —Margaret Doyle

Quaint shops hold treasures waiting to be discovered in the historic river town of Alton. Pair the trip with neighboring Grafton for a weekend of shopping and sipping. Alton’s Antique District includes working studios such as ALTON STAINED GLASS WORKS and MISSISSIPPI MUD POTTERY, where visitors watch artisans create one-of-a-kind pieces. The relatively new (open in 2015) OLD BAKERY BEER COMPANY occupies a downtown 1800s building. The seasonal menu complements the organic beers, such as The Observer, which is also brewed for nearby ELIJAH P’S. Named for local abolitionist Elijah P. Lovejoy, the brewpub serves burgers on house-made sesame buns. Get ready for a ride to Grafton via the MEETING OF THE GREAT RIVERS NATIONAL SCENIC BYWAY, sandwiched between towering limestone cliffs and the meandering Mississippi River. Shopping treasures in Grafton’s Main Street stores include authentic Native American crafts at PAJARITO and works by area artists at THE WHITE PELICAN ART GALLERY. The decks of GRAFTON WINERY AND BREWHAUS and TARA POINT INN AND COTTAGES boast river views that are especially spectacular at sunset.
SEE
• Lewis and Clark history fills the Alton/Grafton area. THE LEWIS AND CLARK STATE HISTORIC SITE tells the explorers’ story and features their life-size keelboat and soldier stories shared by interpreters at Camp River Dubois.
• The nearby 180-foot-tall CONFLUENCE TOWER affords amazing views of the swirling Missouri and Mississippi rivers.
• For a birds-eye view of 200-foot barges navigating the lock-and-dam system, head to the top of the NATIONAL GREAT RIVERS MUSEUM.
• Cyclists pedal the 20-plus-mile SAM VADALABENE BIKE TRAIL, which begins in Alton’s Piasa Park (near the cliffside Piasa Bird mural) and skirts the Mississippi River before ending in scenic Pere Marquette State Park.
• Thrill-seekers whiz through the woods on the GRAFTON ZIPLINE, while bird watchers spy more than 300 species at the AUDUBON CENTER at Riverlands.

SAVOR
• GENTELIN’S ON BROADWAY serves creative meals in a contemporary setting with incredible views of Alton’s CLARK BRIDGE.
• Lentil tacos top the list of likes in the sunny courtyard at Alton’s STATE STREET MARKET.
• Close by, FAST EDDIE’S BON AIR is a legendary roadhouse with bands, beer and cheap eats.
• In Grafton, it’s all about views of the river during dinner. Share catfish fritters on the deck of THE LOADING DOCK overlooking the Mississippi. An array of oysters (such as gulf and bluepoint) is expected at GRAFTON OYSTER BAR, but don’t overlook the Cajun and Creole dishes.

STAY
• Overlooking the panoramic confluence of the rivers sits Grafton’s scenic AERIE’S RESORT, which offers cozy lodging as well as award-winning sips at on-site AERIE’S WINERY.
• Alton’s BEALL MANSION is an opulent bed-and-breakfast offering in-room massages and a 24-hour chocolate buffet to spoil guests.
This cable-stayed bridge spans the Mississippi River.

EXPERIENCE THE GREAT AMERICAN ECLIPSE FROM THE SHAWNEE NATIONAL FOREST

THE VIEWS HERE ARE GREAT ANYTIME!
Springfield

Follow in Abraham Lincoln’s footsteps in Springfield, where he lived for 24 years before setting off to become the 16th president of the United States. A great place to begin is the ABRAHAM LINCOLN PRESIDENTIAL LIBRARY AND MUSEUM, where lifelike vignettes tell Abe’s story, from his humble beginnings in a log cabin to his assassination. Two special effects-driven theaters, plus artifacts such as Lincoln’s signature stovepipe hat, delight history fans. Nearby, a guided tour of the LINCOLN HOME NATIONAL HISTORIC SITE, offers a glimpse into daily life for the family. Downtown is the striking OLD STATE CAPITOL, site of many career triumphs, including Lincoln’s famed “House Divided” speech on slavery. Pay respects at the Lincoln Tomb in OAK RIDGE CEMETERY, where visitors rub the well-worn nose of the bronze Lincoln bust for luck.

A costumed interpreter channels Abraham Lincoln during a history event at the grand Old State Capitol.
SEE

• Find visitor info in the refurbished historic UNION STATION. Then pose for a selfie with Abe, whose statue sits on a bench outside this downtown building.

• A costumed guide tells spooky tales and points out Lincoln sites in downtown Springfield during the nighttime LINCOLN’S GHOST WALK.

• The natural history of Illinois, from the dinosaur era to frontier times and up to present day, is wonderfully illustrated at the ILLINOIS STATE MUSEUM. The downstairs Play Museum features a dino dig and fun games.

• Just blocks away sits the beautifully preserved DANA-THOMAS HOUSE, built by esteemed architect Frank Lloyd Wright. The mansion has retained its gorgeous Wright-designed art glass and furniture.

• In Washington Park, listen to summer concerts at the THOMAS REES MEMORIAL CARILLON, one of the world’s largest carillons.

SAVOR

• Drivers on ROUTE 66 stop at the COZY DOG DRIVE IN for a taste of the self-proclaimed original dog on a stick. An upscale version of Springfield’s own horseshoe sandwich (an open-face hamburger served on thick bread, smothered with French fries drenched in cheese sauce) is on the lunch menu at MALDANER’S.

• Located close to the Lincoln Home, OBED AND ISAAC’S MICROBREWERY AND EATERY makes the popular Mother Road pale ale.

• Traditional southern Italian dishes are the specialty at SAPUTO’S, a retro downtown supper club.

• AMERICAN HARVEST EATERY encourages sustainability and uses fresh ingredients such as butternut squash from local farms.

• New Berlin’s DANENBERGER FAMILY VINEYARDS has a cozy four-season tasting room for sampling its wines.

STAY

• The PRESIDENT ABRAHAM LINCOLN SPRINGFIELD, A DOUBLETREE BY HILTON HOTEL, puts guests in the heart of downtown historic sites.

• The contemporary boutique STATE HOUSE INN is near the Old State Capitol.

• The INN AT 835 offers vintage charm, with rooms named for flowers favored by the high-society florist who founded the inn in the early 1900s.
Costumed interpreters interact with visitors while sharing tales at Springfield’s landmark sites during the summer program History Comes Alive.
VISIT METROPOLIS
Adventure Awaits

With the same name as the fictional city made famous in comic books, this real life Metropolis, located in Southernmost IL, along the Ohio River, in the heart of The Shawnee National Forest, is the proud HOME OF SUPERMAN.

Metropolis is also home to a rich history that can be explored at Fort Massac State Park.

The scenic southern Illinois burg of Makanda nestles in the lush SHAWNEE NATIONAL FOREST. Outdoor enthusiasts make tracks to GIANT CITY STATE PARK, which gets its name from the steep, carved sandstone cliffs that resemble city streets fit for a giant. Hikers explore miles of trails or gather their gear and tackle rock-climbing and rappelling on the massive bluffs. GIANT CITY STABLES leads guided horseback tours along wooded paths. The outdoor excitement continues with thrilling ziplines through dense forest trees on the SHAWNEE BLUFFS CANOPY TOUR. The clear and calm waters of Little Grassy Lake, part of the CRAB ORCHARD NATIONAL WILDLIFE REFUGE, are ideal for a day of fishing and boating. For a calmer detour, the quirky MAKANDA BOARDWALK showcases the works of local artisans, including metalwork and gemstone jewelry.
SEE

• Sample the flavors of southern Illinois grapes at 12 vineyards and wineries on the SHAWNEE HILLS WINE TRAIL. BLUE SKY VINEYARD, inspired by a Tuscan villa, is known for its picturesque grounds with outdoor terraces overlooking a lake. At Cobden’s OWL CREEK VINEYARD, the hard ciders are nearly as popular as the wines and are best enjoyed on the shady upstairs deck.

• WHITE CRANE CANOE RENTALS in Ullin gives two-hour guided tours, by canoe or kayak, of the Cache River, Illinois’ hidden bayou. Spot little blue herons, black vultures and other wildlife in the wetlands and forests of the CYPRESS CREEK NATIONAL WILDLIFE REFUGE.

SAVOR

• For a fine dining experience, TOM’S PLACE in DeSoto offers a six-course menu of seasonal items chosen by proprietor and chef Lasse Sorensen.

• YELLOW MOON CAFE in charming Cobden is another local favorite. Ingredients are sourced from area farmers, so the menu changes weekly, with favorite items like baked peach salad and Asian sea bass. Bands play in Yellow Moon’s intimate listening room.

• Cobden’s rustic THE BLUE BOAR RESTAURANT AND BAR serves Cajun cuisine (think étouffée) along with baby back ribs from local caterer The Great Boars of Fire.

STAY

• At ROCKY COMFORT CABINS, an offbeat lodging option is the hobbit-style Cove, a grass-roof earthen shelter with round windows and sun tunnels that flood the cabin with light.

• GIANT CITY LODGE offers vintage cabins nestled in the woods with modern conveniences. The stunning MAKANDA INN AND COTTAGES, an eco-friendly retreat located on 18 forest acres, is constructed with all-natural building materials.

Within Giant City State Park, explore eight hiking trails, rock climb and rappel, and spend the night in the Giant City Lodge.
The Shawnee Hill Wine Trail includes 12 wineries, four with on-site accommodations.
